Last week Thursday evening, while an Erie train was passing through the town of Franklin, a man on the roadside discharged the contents of a gun loaded with shot through one of the car windows. William H. Dodd, a passenger, who sat by the window, was struck by the shot and severely inured in the face, neck, head, and hand. Immediately after he had done the shooting lieve now that all the tickets will be sold, and that the Immediately after he had done the shooting the man fled into the woods. The train was stopped, and Detective John H. Brown, who happened to be aboard of the train, gave chase to him. He pursued the villain three miles through swamp and woodland before he succeeded in bringing him to terms. He finally captured him, however, and took him before Justice Philips. There he gave the finally captured him, however, and took him before Justice Philips. There he gave him before Justice Philips. There he gave his name as William Crese, but gave no reason for the shooting. Justice Philips fixed his bail at $5,000. Dodd's injuries are painful but not serious.
